Talbot Hospice offers Compassionate Support

Giving to Hospice ensures that other families will receive compassionate support when facing end-of-life issues

The Talbot Hospice Foundation is extremely dedicated to providing compassionate support and services, without charge, to all members of the community facing end-of-life issues.

“There is an increasing demand for our services and in these tough economic times we are working hard not to restrict our services. Our incredible community has been such a huge support over the years and we hope this will continue,” said Julie Crocker Executive Director of Talbot Hospice.

Hospice House on Cynwood Drive is a center of activity for Talbot County citizens. It is here that one finds the Guest Wing residence which provides a home for those at the end of life, volunteers serving patients and families, numerous educational and bereavement support groups, free medical equipment which is provided on a loan basis and a large conference meeting space which is made available and used by local organizations. All of these services are provided without charge to the community.

“Our priority is to help those who need services most, especially in the Guest Wing where we serve families from low to moderate incomes,” said Kate Cox, Director of Development. “With the current financial challenges, health services are expensive and driven by insurance costs; here at Talbot Hospice we offer an ideal health services model where in order to provide the best possible care our team of medical professionals reviews the needs of each family on an individual basis.”

Given the current economic climate, Talbot Hospice is adjusting their budget in order to be most prudent, frugal and cost effective. The launching of the annual ‘Spring Appeal’ seeks financial contributions from the community to support programs that are offered without charge. All financial gifts are appreciated and Talbot Hospice is grateful to those who endeavor to remember a loved one with a memorial donation. There continues to be a great demand for bereavement, spiritual and in home care programs and Talbot Hospice maintains their commitment to serving those in need. The residents of Talbot County have come to depend on Hospice and in turn Hospice depends on the community for their volunteer and financial support.
