Talbot Hospice Foundation Launches New Website

An instructive new web site has just been launched by Talbot Hospice Foundation! User friendly and full of pertinent information, this new site clearly communicates the Talbot Hospice mission of offering hope, compassionate support, and services to all members of the community facing end-of-life issues.

A collaborative effort, Talbot Hospice employed the talents of two local businesses, Whitney Edwards LLC., and Steward Writing & Communications.

“The staff wanted very much for the website to become a place where people could find support and information to serve their end-of-life needs. This included everyone from family members who need to understand what hospice means and how we can help their loved one, to family members who live out of state, to prospective volunteers, people with bereavement issues, and even donors,” said Kate Cox, Director of Development & Communications for Talbot Hospice.

The nine month project was a mutual effort between writers Amy Steward and Tracey Munson and website designers, Charlene Edwards and Jason Price. Kate Cox tailored the project along the way with her expert vision of Talbot Hospice.

Working as a team, Steward and Munson purposefully designed the site to be easy to navigate and to function on many levels. Essential program and service information is available as well as more detailed specifics on Volunteering, The Festival of the Trees, links to Resources, a Calendar of Events and Donations.

“It was a great privilege to work with Talbot Hospice, Tracey and I collaborated closely with the Talbot Hospice staff to produce a product that would benefit the community. We did the writing and then Whitney Edwards pulled it together with their magic,” said Amy Steward of Steward Writing & Communication.

The end result is a web site that will help those that visit to understand the numerous ways that Talbot Hospice aids those in Talbot County. Providing patient and family care, community education and advocacy, Talbot Hospice respects both curative and palliative treatment choices. All services are provided without charge through the generous support of the community. You may access the site by visiting www.talbothospice.org.
